Inside The Numbers

After a relatively even opening round, Torres ramped up his output in the second round, daring the veteran Walters to keep up with him. Torres averaged 80 punches thrown and 26 punches landed in rounds two and three, while Walters averaged 66 and 19. Though Walters opened up a nasty looking cut over Torres' right eye, Torres scored a knockdown at the end of round three. Walters got up, but decided to retire in between rounds.
