Inside The Numbers

The combatants were separated by 4 or less landed punches in seven of the ten rounds. Khegai came out aggressive, getting inside and winging power punches. However, after averaging 53 punches thrown in rounds one and two, Khegai's output dipped, to an average of 43 punches thrown over rounds three through ten. Gonzalez blunted Khegai's offense, by finding his range and utilizing his 6.5 inch reach advantage. After averaging 10 punches landed over the first two rounds, Gonzalez averaged 15 punches landed over the last eight rounds. Khegai was deducted one point for excessive clinching in the fifth round. Gonzalez almost ended the fight in the ninth round when he landed a left hook to Khegai's limit in the closing minute, but Khegai survived. One judge scored the fight for Khegai 95-94, but they were overruled by the other two judges who scored the fight for Gonzalez 96-93 and 97-92.
