Inside The Numbers

Collins came out of the gate throwing punches, opening up a 117-86 edge in punches landed over the first six rounds. Lorente worked his way into the fight, chipping away at Collins with hard counters. The sixth round was the high water mark for action, with Collins landed 40 of 78 punches and Lorente connecting on 31 of 71. Both fighters took their foot off of the gas pedal in the seventh round where they both landed 11 punches. Lorente flipped the advantage over rounds eight through twelve, out-landing Collins 109-84. The final stats were close, as were the judge's cards. One judge scored it for Collins, 115-113. The second judge scored it 115-113 for Lorente, and the third judge scored the fight 114-114, for a split draw.
